ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Writing this book was by no means a solo endeavour. Many people have helped me along the way with their advice, feedback, and support. I would therefore like to thank the following people, starting with Paul 't Hart. Paul, thank you for pointing out blame game research to me. Will Jennings, thank you for taking the time to discuss your blame game research methods and to provide feedback on various publications. I would also like to thank Daniel Aldrich for facilitating my sabbatical stay at Northeastern University.

This research would not have been possible without the help of numerous students, student-assistants, and co-authors who have taken the time to code the newspaper articles. So a big thank you to Steven Boesveld, Maarten Geraerts, Rob Jetten, Dorine van de Lustgraaf, Martha Mahlstedt, Sanne Maris, Renske van der Maten, Marlou Meertens, Marloes Meijer, Dineke Meijers, Annemarie van der Plas, Louisa Reumerman, Josien de Reuver, Claudia Schorr, Anne Walraven, and Wouter Zantinge.

I would like to thank two co-authors in particular because they have stuck with me even though the blame game project has taken years to complete and they have been kind enough to provide feedback on various blame game publications—including this book. Brendan Carroll: without your statistical wizardry, I would not have gotten very far with my blame game research. Thank you for your help, feedback, and patience as well as being so kind as to create the figures in this book for the Love Parade on short notice. Carola van Eijk, thank you for the wonderful cooperation over the years and your insightful feedback.

Over the years, numerous people have provided feedback at conferences, workshops, and seminars—for which I am grateful. I would also like to thank the following people for their feedback: Mark Bennister, Annika Brändström, Michiel de Vries, Michel Dückers, Jean Hartley, Leonie Heres, Wouter Jong, Niels Karsten, Sanneke Kuipers, Christiaan Lako, Karin Lasthuizen, Jo Luetjens, Ruth Prins, Arjen Schmidt, Sabine Stiller, Paul 't Hart, Marieke van Genugten, Sabine van Zuydam, and Pieter Zwaan.

This book could not have been written without the support of my boss, my co-workers, my parents, and my friends—a huge thank you, particularly for their patience while I was submerged in this book. Lastly, but certainly not least, I would like to thank Jemima Warren and Ollie Foster for their support during this project.

As always, any mistakes are my own.
